TWICE A WEEK AT $2 A YEAR.

Hood's Cures

When I began to be troubled with skin eruptions, itching, and burning, and affecting my eyes, I tried many remedies, but I was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
and its cures are well known to all who have used it. It is a blood purifier and a skin cure. It is sold in bottles of 25 cents and 50 cents.

WAGES IN EUROPE.

A Swiss silk ribbon weaver regards himself as fortunate if he averages 45 cents a day the year round.

German wholesale and retail stores in Düsseldorf receive from $9 to $14 a month women clerks from $7 to $10.

German editors receive an average of $12.50 salary per week; proof-readers, $1.50; compositors, $1.00; the devil gets $1.45.

An Italian miner receives 8 shillings a week; a cotton mill hand, 10; a dyer, 12; a stonecutter, 15; a mason, 14; a tailor, 15.

Proven and reported in Bohemia are paid 30 cents a day, females employed at the same labor receive 20 cents, neither heard nor lodging being furnished.

The wages of factory laborers in England in 1890 were 3 shillings a week; in 1888, 17; in Germany, at the same date, the wages were respectively, 25 and 30 shillings.

A thirteen-year old daughter of Lum Groves, of Montgomery county, Tenn., was fatally burned and died in three hours. She caught her clothing on fire while reaching up the chimney to get soot on her tooth brush.

The comparative statement of earnings of the Louisville & Nashville for the first week in February shows total earnings of $377,070, a decrease of $81,470 from the same week in 1893.

Harrison Knight, who was arrested last week in Union county on a charge of counterfeiting, has been held over in a $1,000 bond. He failed to give the required bond and was placed in jail at Owensboro.

The Morganfield correspondent of the Henderson Journal says: "Rev. G. W. Lyon was so unfortunate a few days ago as to stick a nail into his foot, rendering him unable to hold his regular services Sunday."

Young Harris, who is charged with forgery in Trigg county, last week and will have a hearing at the present term of Circuit Court.

Mr. S. T. Ashmore has sold out his general merchandise business at Crofton to Mr. J. Y. Jones, who will conduct the store in future. It is understood that Mr. Ashmore will open a store in another part of the town at an early date.

Mr. C. F. Davis, editor of the Bloomfield, Iowa, Farmer, says: "I can recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to all sufferers with colds and croup. I have used it in my family for the past two years and have found it the best I ever used for the purposes for which it is intended. 50 cent bottles for sale by R. C. Hardwick."

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment, when rightly used. The many who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative, effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers, and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

There was a heavy fall of snow in Indiana and Illinois Wednesday and as far south as Sevier, Ky., the "beautiful" was several inches deep.

John W. Byrum, an Illinois thief, who at one time lived in this state, has been given 20 years in the penitentiary for stealing a dozen hens.

SANFORD D. DOLE

Something About the Head of Hawaii's Provisional Government.

The friends of President Dole describe him as cool, collected and always holding himself in perfect self-control. He was born in Honolulu about fifty years ago. He is a fine specimen of physical manhood, being over six feet tall, broad-shouldered and with keen eyes and a strong, frank face formed in a high forehead. His parents came from Maine. His father was first president of Punahou school, which afterward became Oahu college. President Dole attended Williams college in this country and studied law at Cambridge law school. He was admitted to the bar in Honolulu and went right to the front. He has practiced his profession ever since, have for the interruption, last January, when he was called to the bar in Honolulu. He took a prominent part in opposing the barbaric reactionary measure in President Sanford D. Dole. He was a member of the Hawaiian legislature in 1884 and drafted and pushed to passage a bill to amend the constitution of the Hawaiian Islands, settlement. By that act about seven hundred families have acquired homesteads, paying for them on the five-year installment plan. The bill has been a hobby with him and since he became president he has made it a measure to throw open the crown lands which have heretofore been used to raise revenue for the private purse of the sovereign. There are about nine hundred thousand acres and preference is to be given to the native Hawaiians. The only terms are that the occupant shall cultivate them and shall not have the privilege of disposing of them.

He has several times been a member of the Hawaiian legislature, and has always been identified with what is known as the "reform movement." In 1887 he was appointed associate justice of the supreme court, and was promoted to the second place, which he resigned to take his present position. He is said to be as brave a person as any lives on the islands. And they tell how, practically single-handed, he stood at the door of the legislative building and faced down an infuriated mob who, with weapons in their hands, demanded admittance. He is thoroughly convinced that annexation to the United States is the destiny of Hawaii, and that annexation will contribute to the benefit of both the islands and this country. Until then he will do his best to prevent the restoration of the monarchy.

About Certified Checks.

The head of a leading banking house has issued a standstill just now in the law in regard to certified checks, and finds that if the drawer of a check has taken it to the bank and had it certified he is still jointly with the bank responsible to the holder for the amount of the check. If the payee, however, has taken the check to the bank and had it certified, the drawer of the check is no longer responsible to the payee because the payee accepts, by that action, the responsibility of the bank.

WHAT MINISTERS SAY ABOUT THE ELECTROPOISE.

Editorial from Central Methodist, Catlettsburg, Ky., Rev. Z. Meek, Editor:—"Unless I can thank you, mainly professor, men, lawyers, doctors, editors, preachers, and all classes, including the writer, are very much mistaken, the Electro-poise of these cures, given relief where all other remedies have failed, especially in old folks for delicate, feeble women."

Rev. W. W. Bruce, Hustonville, Ky.:—"With the Electro-poise I have cured a bad case of opium habit in less than two months time; the patient now has no desire for the drug."

Rev. John I. Rogers, Danville, Ky.:—"A kind woman of mine who was apparently rapidly sinking into the grave, suffering with sciatic rheumatism, in a very short time obtained free from all pain, walks without crutch or cane, and declares that she is well. It is a mystery to me, almost a miracle."

Rev. W. E. Wyatt, Morning View, Ky.:—"I began to improve from the first application of the 'Wonder working gem,' my general health is better than it has been for years. I believe it to be a God's given remedy."

Rev. Rob. M. Barrett, Baptist Seminary, Louisville, Ky.:—"I gladly add my testimonial to that of many witnesses for the Electro-poise. Besides other serious troubles, I have cured a severe attack of a gripe in one night treatment."

Rev. Geo. H. Means, Co. Ky.:—"In one night time the Electro-poise relieved me of brain congestion and vertigo. My wife was relieved of a severe attack of neuralgia in one hour."

DOLABELLE'S LETTER.
The Contagious Brevity of the Fair Winter Girl.

What Women Should Wear to the Country—Threatened Revival of the Bustle—Wraps for Early Spring—The Separate Waist.

(Special New York Letter.)

I sing the winter girl, who lately sang her summer sister, and I do really contend that she is an utterly charming creature in her fluttering feathers and fur. True, she is a trifle kittenish as she scatters about the avenues, where lately the more dignified summer girl, with a brisling freshness about her, a breeziness that is contagious and delightful. She soars, she scintillates, she purrs, and all the male persuasion fall down at her shrine and worship.

Her figure, sleek with its small waist and her skirt and her long, flowing hair, which curls in tendrils curiously about her white throat, snuggles up to her pink cheeks, and even dares to brush her saucy lips—all these are graceful adjuncts to her personal charms. Then her vivacity, her overflow of winter spirits, and the catch-as-catch-can air with which she goes on her conquering way, all conspire to make the winter girl the piece de resistance of the year. Long may she wave in her little jaunts of pleasure up and down Broadway, and wherever most people do congregate.

Dear, dear, I am told the bustle is coming in and indeed if you will closely observe the Paris overalls, dress in the illustration, you will see that there is more than a hint of it—it is an actual revivification, returned with the old style overalls which, of a younger generation must now adopt. I have seen several new gowns this week with little bustles placed in the back of the skirt and attached to the belt.

I suppose I looked sorry, for the French modiste said with much gesticulation: "But, mademoiselle, what would you? There is a—what you call hollow more costly than the materials of which they were made."

The truthfulness of dress descriptions in novels cannot always be depended upon by the fashion-conscious people. The latest news from the seat of fashion—Paris—announces a change in the style of outside capes. Instead of the high shoulders and ruffled caps, the new style is a simple, hanging of the shoulder like the top edge of a mackintosh. Is the latest style, Persian lamb, Australian and seal are the fabrics used, but the two former are the most fashionable. The military cape, I am informed by leading furriers, is the advance fashion for next year. As many are being made as late in the season as the present time, this would be reasonable. I heard an important fashionist give an imperative order for shoulder caps, with borders of fur, adding that she would have them made separate to wear on spring up-coming.

Looking through a dressmaker's new orders, I found one for a dark violet serge, with long wrap of the same, lined with purple silk, with trimmings of black Astrakhan. There was a muff of the same, finished with ends and ruffles of velvet and silk Parma violets.

"Why violet?" I asked, merrily. "Lent, mademoiselle. This is for special services at Grace church."

Surely, I had forgotten that Lent begins this year as early as February 7, and that another penitential costume I had seen without noting its significance. It was gray serge, banded with black Astrakhan, with a wave of purple satin ribbon above each hand. The shoulder cape of Astrakhan was lined with purple satin which discreetly revealed itself at the edges, and stole fronts of satin reached to the feet, and gave an ecclesiastical air to the costume.

An entrance of simple black, considered the plus ultra of good taste for Lent among those who are religiously inclined. I am assured there is to be a splendor of Easter, and this year, but for that matter there is in the back, if I put not the cushion in."

"So in order to avoid the hollow we are to have the hump?" I answered sententiously.

And the madame wrung her hands, and shrugged her shoulders, and looked her determination not to be held responsible for this caprice of fashion in gowns.

By the way, women are no longer well-dressed—they are well-proportioned. For very young ladies—debutantes—we use the term "frills" just now in fashion, for the reason that it is too late for winter styles, and too early for spring. There is a whisper that draped skirts will be all the rage, and it still takes from two and a half to three yards of silk to make a pair of sleeves, and the shoulder caps are still a duffer, but the party and reception and consequent gowns are now the theme of the dressmaker. These last are in white silk, usually combined with some delicate evening color, or with one of the many beautiful gauze fabrics now found in profusion.

These frocks for the buds are elegant simplicity itself, and the newest touch is a high bodice pointed girlishly back and front, with long sleeves which have enormous balloon shoulder-puffs and tight, gauntlets, ending with a Shakespearean cuff. This style is quaint and prudent beyond peradventure, but I must prefer the more childish, short puff-sleeve ending at the elbow with a fall of lace. The Shakespearean cuff flares over the hand, and does away with the necessity of wearing gloves. I noticed at the last ball at Sherry's that the debutantes had ringlets—possibly only a caprice of that evening.

The post-nuptial gown is an innovation. It is no longer considered good form to wear the wedding-gown to the first party. This is as it should be, according to all theories: the wedding-gown, like the white uniform of the Russian army, should only be worn twice in a lifetime, the buds are elegant simplicity itself, and the newest touch is a high bodice pointed girlishly back and front, with long sleeves which have enormous balloon shoulder-puffs and tight, gauntlets, ending with a Shakespearean cuff. This style is quaint and prudent beyond peradventure, but I must prefer the more childish, short puff-sleeve ending at the elbow with a fall of lace. The Shakespearean cuff flares over the hand, and does away with the necessity of wearing gloves. I noticed at the last ball at Sherry's that the debutantes had ringlets—possibly only a caprice of that evening.

The separate waist for evening or afternoon wear continues in favor, and is likely to be worn another season. The silk remnants offer great discomfort in this line. The one in the illustration in black and white is of black moire antique with open shoulder caps of black lace dotted, and bordered with white racy lines. The glands in the back of the bodice are lace over silk to match the throat band.

A vivid red silk waist trimmed with a similar lace in yellow lines instead of white, is very stylish. Some ladies have half a dozen such waists in wear with half the number of skirts.
